WASHINGTON NEWS.

Another Statement of the President's Cabinet Intentions.

B. H. Brewster Unanimously Confirmed Attorney General.

Judge Gray Nominated Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

Amendment of the Mining Laws Proposed in the House.

THE NEW CABINET.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—There is to-day very high and apparently ample authority for predicting that ex-Senator Sargent will, shortly after the holidays recess, be appointed to a place in the cabinet, and strong indications point to the secretaryship of the interior as the position to which the president intends to assign him. The president's choice for the navy department seems to now be between General Edward F. Beale and ex-Senator Boutwell, with chances at present in favor of the former, whose appointment is firmly urged by General Grant. The widely circulated reports that ex-Senator Chaffee is booked for either the interior department or postmaster general, are entirely without foundation. The president has no intention of appointing Chaffee to any cabinet position, and in fact has never taken his candidacy into serious consideration. An impression prevails in well-informed circles to-day that some obstacle had arisen in the way of Chauncey I. Filley's appointment as postmaster general and that ex-Senator Howe now has the best chance for that position, but the question is still undetermined and will perhaps remain undecided until after the holidays. Sargent is expected to arrive here in a day or two and it is said he comes to Washington at the request of the president for the purpose of consultation in regard to his place in the cabinet. It is generally understood that there will be no further cabinet nominations sent to the senate until it reassembles in January, at which time Postmaster General James will retire and the formation of the new cabinet will be completed.

NEW YORK, December 19.—The Times' Washington special has a new lot of cabinet rumors. The following are the latest: Ex-Senator Boutwell, it is reported, has been tendered the navy portfolio, but is not inclined to accept. Boutwell is believed to desire appointment as United States circuit judge, and is urging the appointment of Judge Lowell, of the Massachusetts circuit, to the vacancy on the supreme bench caused by the death of Associate Justice Clifford, with the expectation of succeeding Judge Lowell. William E. Chandler is mentioned as likely to succeed to the navy department should Boutwell decline that place. The interior department is said to stand between ex-Senators Chaffee and Sargent. Report is current to-night that Sargent has been telegraphed to come at once to Washington.

NOMINATION OF JUDGE GRAY.

The president nominated Thomas C. Acton Gray, of Massachusetts, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States.

NOMINATIONS IN COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—The senate judiciary committee unanimously agreed to report back the nomination of B. H. Brewster for attorney general with the recommendation that he be confirmed. Senate committee on naval affairs decided on the postponement of action on the nomination of Pay Director Walmouth to be paymaster general and other contested navy nominations until after the holidays.

FRELINGHUYSEN IN POSSESSION.

Secretary Frelinghuysen took possession of the state department to-day.

PITNEY'S EVIDENCE.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—The contingent fund investigation committee at the morning session examined Pitney very closely about the manner of disbursing the contingent fund heretofore in the treasury; the laws of its disbursement, wherein these laws have been violated; who was responsible for these violations, and so on. Pitney testified freely and tells a straightforward story. Says a person who heard his testimony: "Pitney is telling all he knows without reservation, and he knows a great deal. He has in effect turned state's evidence."

BREWSTER CONFIRMED.

After fifteen minutes spent in receiving petitions the senate went into executive session and unanimously confirmed the nomination of Brewster, attorney general, and Davis, assistant secretary of state.

MINING LAWS.

WASHINGTON, December 18. Congressman Davis of Illinois has introduced in the house of representatives a bill to amend the mining law so as to provide that in any case where, between two locations on the same lode or vein, or between a location and any natural object which forms a visible or apparent termination of such vein, there shall be a remnant or portion of said lode or vein not exceeding 1,500 feet in length not located or otherwise appropriated, for the space of one year, and the same shall be open and visible, or readily accessible in any part thereof, by reason of its being deeply covered or otherwise inaccessible, it shall be lawful for the owner or claimant of either of the adjoining ends of said lode or vein, to make claim to such unlocated remnant, and to locate it as an extension of the lode held by him, and to obtain a patent for it without performing the labor required, as in case of discovery and location of an original claim. The bill further provides, that in case application has not been made for a patent on such original claim, the application may include the extension as aforesaid. In all such cases it shall be sufficient location of such unappropriated tract that the locater set up a notice and mark corners of location indicating his claim to such tract, as an extension of the adjacent lode; provided, however, that such owner shall apply for a patent on such remnant within two years.

Davis has also introduced a bill to amend an act of June 3, 1878, authorizing the citizens of Nevada, Colorado, and the territories to take timber from the public domain for mining and domestic purposes, by adding to its first section a proviso as follows: "Provided, that nothing in this act shall be construed to authorize any person other than the holders of a claim or location upon a mineral lode or other mineral land, made and held pursuant to laws relating to mineral land, to enter upon such claim or location, and cut, remove or destroy, or otherwise injure the timber upon such claim or mineral location."

BLAINE'S INTENTIONS.

CHICAGO, December 19.—Blaine was asked to-day which particular one of the many rumors about his movements and intentions were true. "I don't want to be interviewed," he said, "but I am willing to say it it is of any public interest that there are many things I don't intend to do. I have no intention of moving to New York to take charge of the interests of any department of the M. K. & T. railway as no proposition of such a nature has been remotely suggested to me. I don't intend to move to New York for any reason. I shall remain in Washington and give my attention to a number of long neglected private interests. My principal business will be in connection with a railroad in which I have embarked some capital: not millions as is stated, but enough to make it an object to me."

"Is this the railroad Elkins is connected with?"

"Yes, sir; Mr. Elkins, Senator Davis of West Virginia, and a number of other gentlemen, whose names have been already mentioned. The property is a first rate one and its developments will occupy all my spare time."

"You have been credited with designing a southern tour."

"However much I may be disposed to accept the very cordial invitations I have had to go south, I shall probably be obliged to decline them all. I have been necessarily a pretty busy man for the past twelve months, and shall now seek to avoid the excitement of unnecessary activity."

"When will your new house be finished?"

"I don't know. I don't intend to occupy it, however, until next fall or winter."

"Your health is good, is it not?"

"Yes; much better."

HOUSE COMMITTEES.

Speaker Kiefer expects to announce the house committees next Wednesday. He has been embarrassed considerably, in making them up. Courtesy, rather than the custom that has prevailed would make Hiscock chairman of one of the important committees, and friends have been urging him for the appropriations, but the stalwarts are opposing him as they did in the speakership contest, and are pushing Crowley for chairman of the judiciary committee. One state cannot with propriety be given more than one leading committee, even though the state of New York. Ex-Senator Platt, of New York, is here working against Hiscock, as are also Davis and Cameron. Keifer is very reticent on the subject, but the supposition is that Crowley will win. Reed is being pressed for the judiciary committee. There are numerous disappointments and heart-burnings over the make up of the committee, and it is said several Ohio members have not got what they wanted. Belford wants the committee on public lands, and refused that on mines and mining.

CAUCUSING.

NEW YORK, December 19.—The Tribune's Washington special reported that a conference took place this afternoon at the house of Cameron, Pennsylvania, at which Platt, Keifer and Senator Cameron were present, and that this conference succeeded one between President Arthur and Platt, in reference to the committee appointments. No details of either conference could be obtained. Platt left for New York this evening, immediately after a second visit to the White House.

BELFORD MAKES A STIR.

There is indignation expressed in the senate, because of Representative Belford's reflections on the organization of the committees of that body, and democrats are talking freely on the subject. One of them said to-day something would be done about it.

"What can you do?" was asked.

"We can formally demand of Belford his authority, if he has any, for his imputations that the senate committees were made up in the interest of monopolies and corporations. I am satisfied he is only seeking notoriety, and that his insinuations against the senate were made only to attract attention, but we can show that up, and expose the weakness and vanity of the man."

NEW TRIAL FOR GUITEAU.

Among the lawyers here there is the impression that the death of Juror Hobbs' wife and his absence to attend the funeral, will eventuate in a new trial for Guiteau. While the counsel on both sides consented that Hobbs should attend the funeral, the idea is the defense will, if necessary, make use of it to get a new trial, provided the present trial ends in conviction. The court is desirous of according to the defense every right and every privilege out of abundant caution against the possibility of hanging a man not mentally responsible. Some lawyers think this possible in the event it is claimed that Juror Hobbs had communications which influenced his mind, and provided of course the verdict be one of guilty. Probably this will induce the court to grant a new trial.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Speaker Keifer intends to announce the house committees on Wednesday.

The house to-day passed the senate resolution granting the franking privilege to Mrs. Garfield.

Department statistics show that for the five months ending November 30, 291,318 emigrants arrived as against 254,263 last year.

Mining Stocks.

NEW YORK, December 19.—Mining stocks to-day were very dull, the only stock displaying life being Robinson, which opened at 3.30, declined to 3.05 and closed at 3.25. State Lines two and three dull, at 2.55, and Oriental and Miller, 40 and 38; South Pacific sold at 8.75 and 8.70, and Bradshaw from 41 to 54. Green Mountain declined to 2.20, and Hibernia to 1.90. At the close the market was without feature. Total sales, 142,090 shares.

A SERIOUS CHARGE

Against Jeff Davis by General Joe Johnston,

Who Says He Stole a Large Amount of Money.

PHILADELPHIA, December 19. A special to the Press of a half column interview between a staff correspondent and General Joe Johnston in the course of which he charged Jeff Davis with stealing a large amount of money. He desired it to be distributed among the soldiers as they had received no pay for months, and so wrote Mr. Davis after he fled from Richmond to Charlotte, but Mr. Davis paid no attention to his suggestion. In answer to questions as to what he knew about the final use to which the money was put, General Johnston is quoted as saying: "It followed or preceded the head of the civil government of the confederacy to the south, about the time Davis went in that direction."

"Have you any idea of the amount of specie Davis carried south?"

Colonel Paul, an eminent artillery officer of the confederate army and now a prominent lawyer of Richmond, and a man of high character, told me he inspected the specie before its removal from Richmond, and after it had been loaded ready for transportation. He said there was a car load of it. As he only saw it boxed ready for shipment he could give no information as to the amount in dollars and cents. General Beauregard, however, was in immediate command at Greensboro while Davis was there and had an opportunity of knowing more accurately the amount of money with the president than most any one except his immediate political friends. He told me he was confident the president had $25,000,000 in specie at Greensboro. I have no doubt his estimate was within bounds. After Davis left Charlotte and moved south a confederate officer told me that while standing near a bridge crossing a small creek a man rode up and inspected it. He said he was in charge of the president's money and wanted to see if the bridge was safe or not. The man in charge told the officer he had twenty wagon loads of specie in the train. This would be in perfect harmony with Col. Paul's statement that there was a car load when it left Richmond and with Gen. Beauregard's that there was $25,000,000 at Greensboro.

What became of the money left?

That I am unable to say. Davis has never given a satisfactory account to my knowledge, and what is strange to me the southern people have never told him to account for it.

GOVERNOR FOSTER INTERVIEWED.

He Tells About Blaine and Arthur.

NEW YORK, December 19.—Governor Foster, of Ohio, whom the political wiseacres claim is on the Blaine ticket for the campaign of 1884, held an impromptu levee in the corridors of the Fifth Avenue hotel this morning.

"Are the knowing ones right this time in regard to your reported alliance with Mr. Blaine, governor?" inquired a reporter.

"There is not a word of truth in it," replied the distinguished Ohioan. "As far as Mr. Blaine is concerned, I believe he is not a presidential candidate, at least I judge so from the fact that when I last saw him in Cleveland he said he was 'discharged, cured'; or, in other words, he was satisfied with his experience."

"It is said you were highly pleased over your recent friendly reception by President Arthur, and that you believed his administration will redound to the good of the country and to the republican party?"

"Yes; I was much gratified over my interview with the president and regard him as an able and honest man; and, furthermore, I believe his administration will not be characterized by any act that will antagonize the republican party."

More Nihilists Arrested.

NEW YORK, December 19.—The Herald's cable from St. Petersburg says the police made a descent on a house in Makowal street, behind General Jenatieff's residence, and arrested eight persons who offered vigorous resistance. The police seized a large quantity of small bombs, some of which were skillfully concealed in oranges. Among the papers seized was a letter recently arrived from London blaming the nihilists for their inactivity and calling upon them to act without delay. The letter is attributed to Prince Krapotkine.

This affair seems to have relation to that which provoked the arrest of several other persons some days ago. These persons had ordered two officer's uniforms with crosses of the order of St. George. The crosses would have given them access to the palace of Gatschina on the ninth inst., the fete day of the saint. On the proposition of Pobedonostzeff, president of the sacred synod, the private and secret council is about to be reestablished. This species of court of the inquisition was created in the time of Emperor Paul and search is now being made among archives for elements to serve for a restitution.

KANSAS COW BOYS

Still Pursued by the Infuriated Citizens of Caldwell.

CALDWELL, December 18.—The report came in late last night that Talbot and his party had been corraled in the brakes of Deer creek, about twelve miles south of here. It was ascertained that the cow boys had been closely pursued, and that when they got to Deer creek they concealed themselves. The pursuing party only numbered eight men, but they surrounded the ruffians as well as they could, and kept up firing upon them. About dark W. E. Campbell, one of the pursuers, received a shot which struck him above the groin, glanced and went through his wrist. This distracted the attention of the citizens, and it seems that during that time the cow boys crawled out and escaped. At daylight this morning it was found that they had gone. By that time there were fifty men on the ground, all well armed. Details were sent out and the country scoured, but up to this evening no report had come in. Capt. J. M. Steele, of Wichita, brother-in-law of Mike Meigher, one of the men killed here yesterday, has gone down early this morning with about fifteen men. Steele means business and won't give up the chase until the villains are captured, or there is no possibility of taking them. The cow-boys are on foot, and without hats, having lost them in the chase. One of them is known to be wounded in the ankle. The streets here have been full of people all day, and there seems to be a determination to clean out not only the parties who instigated the raid, but those who consort with them. Caldwell will most likely lose some of its citizens by sudden emigration, or otherwise before to-morrow night. The coroner is now holding an inquest over Mike Meigher, which will probably last until to-morrow. Meigher's body will be taken to Wichita for burial. Meigher was marshal of that town during the worst part of the cattle trade. He was brave to a fault, and a man who never shirked duty. The inquest on George Speers will probably commence to-morrow. Speers was one of the friends of George Flat, who was killed here last year while Meigher was mayor of the city. The best informed state that the Speer outfit got up the row to have Meigher killed, having had a spite against him since the killing of Flat. There are three of the Speer family left, the old man, Dave, and a boy about 12, named Wade. Old Speers has brought his boys up to drink, gamble and do everything else mean, and the people here tire of seeing them around. Four parties, named Tom Love, Dick Eddleman, Tom Delony and Comanche Bill, charged with complicity in the row yesterday, are under arrest. It is uncertain how they will be disposed of. The sheriff will probably take try to take them to Wellington. But whether the people will stand that is doubtful.

Hawk introduced a bill for the protection of the person of the president of the United States, it provides for punishment by death for assault with intent to kill the president of the United States. The speaker laid before the house the following message from the president transmitting a communication from the secretary of the interior in relation to the application of the Chicago, Texas and Mexico Central Railway company and St. Louis and San Francisco railroad for the right of way across the Choctaw reservation in Indian territory; transmitting a communication from the secretary of state in regard to the necessity of modifying the present system of consular jurisdiction of the United States, in eastern countries; transmitting a communication from the secretary of state setting forth the expediency of organizing a class of supernumerary secretaries of legation.

The bill introduced by Representative Pettibone relative to the retirement of army officers provides that all general officers and officers of different staff corps shall be retired from active service when they have served 45 years in the army and all line officers be retired when they have reached the age of 60. The bill further provides when the general and staff officers who have not served 45 years and line officers who have served are not 60 and are unable to properly preform their duties, they shall be reported by the general of the army to the president who will convene a board of officers to report the facts of the case with recommendations. Should the board report disability as a result of service in the line of duty the officer will be placed on the retired list; otherwise he will be retired with one year's pay.

Adjourned till Wednesday.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

The house concurrent resolution for adjournment over the holidays was referred to the committee on appropriations.

After the morning hour Jones (Fla.) resumed the discussion of presidential succession. He held that under the constitution there was no such thing as temporary inability. He asserted emphatically that when once the vice-president entered the president's office in a case of such grave inability as to justify that step, he holds it irrevocable for the balance of the year. The debate terminated pending resolutions of instructions to the judiciary committee to enquire and report on the legislation on the subject with a bill.

The chair submitted executive documents in response to senate resolutions relating to the seizure of Vizenlezo Rebello, an Italian, in the city of New Orleans; also, report of the secretary of state relating to the necessity of modifying consular jurisdiction in eastern countries. After a short executive session the senate adjourned.

Irish Resistance.

DUBLIN, December 19.—The organization against the payment of rent is becoming still more formidable. It is regarded as much of a crime to go into the land court as to pay rent. A list of persons have been served with notices, and those suspected of paying rents are posted at the chapels and other places where they are likely to be seen; and although the police tear them down, they are posted again.

Texas News.

CHICAGO, December 19.—A special from Brownsville, Texas, says: Charles Lechou was shot by unknown parties near Laredo.

Nicholas Paenz, recently captured near Curnavaca, was hung to a grave yard.

In a gambling difficulty at Matamoras, between Severiana Arredoude and Felipe Gonzales, the latter killed the former. The father of Arredoude killed Gonzales.

A Mexican has been found murdered on the road near Rio Grande City. This is the seventh murder in this locality in six weeks.

Joseph B. Lindsay, of Indian Territory, was found murdered and robbed twenty miles from here.

Marcus Bravo, the owner of a wagon train, was murdered in the field where he was taking care of his mules.

Crushing Out Polygamy.

NEW YORK, December 19.—On the subject "What are we to do with the Mormons," the World says: If it were clear that by making a national matter of the attempt to crush out polygamy, we should succeed in crushing it out, it would still be the part of wise men to weigh the cost against the profit of such an undertaking before entering upon it. And when this has been done it will still remain to be ascertained whether by driving the Mormons out of Utah we shall put an end to the polygamy of the Mormons, which, as all intelligent travelers testify has for some years past been dying out of itself, or give the institution a new lease of life in some other region and under another flag.

GUITEAU'S ADDRESS.

In Which He Reviews the Progress of the Trial,

And as Usual Connects Himself With the Deity.

His Estimation of the Counsel, the Judge and the Jury.

NEW YORK, December 18.—Washington dispatches give the following written statement from Guiteau to the press: "I am requested to review my trial and give my opinion of the men who are doing it. In general I am well pleased with the trial, especially the court and jury. Judge Cox I consider just the man for this case. He is able, conscientious and careful, and is disposed to give wide latitude to all parties. I think he believes in my idea of inspiration, as he is a high toned church man, and therefore is disposed to do absolute justice to the Deity and myself. Without the Deity's pressure the president never would have been removed. This pressure destroyed my free agency.

The Deity compelled me to do the act, just as a highwayman compels a man to give him money. After placing a pistol at his victim's head the victim may know it is absolutely wrong for him to give money that his wife and children need, but how can he help it, with the pistol at his head. This irresistible pressure to remove the president was upon me for thirty days, and it never left me when awake. It haunted me night and day. At last an opportunity came, and I shot him in the Baltimore & Potomac depot. I would not do it again for a million dollars. Only a miracle saved me from being shot or hung then and there. It was the most insane and foolhardy act possible, and no one in his right mind could have done it, but the pressure on me was so enormous that I would have done it if I had died the next moment.

I had no power to prevent it. The president was surrounded by his cabinet and personal friends, and 200 or 300 people were in the depot. No one but a mad man would think of assaulting him under such circumstances. If I had not been instantly hurried away by the police I would have been shot or hung in five minutes. The Lord protected me then, as he has done on three other occasions since July 2d, when I have been assaulted. The gradual way the Deity removed the president is a confirmation of my original inspiration. I am well satisfied with the Deity's conduct of this case thus far, and have no doubt but He will continue to father the act to the end, and that the public will, sooner or later, see the special providence in the act.

I have an unusually bright jury and I wish them to pass on my case. I judge they are honest, conscientious and careful. They listen with the greatest interest to the testimony and addresses, and no doubt they will give this case their most solemn attention, and dispose of it according to the facts and the law, and I presume the high toned conscientious press of the nation will acquiesce in their verdict.

Mr Corkhill has introduced certain witnesses who are guilty of rank perjury. Some of them have known nothing for years and care nothing about it. The perjury has been so manifest and wicked that it has excited my wrath, and I have denounced them in plain language. I shall also show their iniquity in rebuttal to my testimony and that of others. I have denounced the district attorney for the mean, deceitful way he has conducted the prosecution. My opinion of him is well known and I decline to notice him here. Mr Davidge is supposed to be a high-toned lawyer and a fine gentleman, and I am well pleased with his connection in the case. Judge Porter I knew years ago when I practised law in New York. I do not admire his style. He is too venomous in examination. He is supposed to be a good lawyer.

The defense has been unfortunate in having insufficient counsel. Mr. Scoville has done well, considering his inexperience in criminal matters. He and I differ as to the conduct of the case. He lays too much stress on hereditary insanity. It is not the shape of one's head or hang of the tongue, but the spirit that takes possession of one, that makes them sane or insane. The science of spiritology is more important than craniology, although craniology may have an important bearing on it. Mr Scoville nurses his fool theory as tenderly as a mother would her infant. I expected two or three first class lawyers on the case, but we have been forced to go on without them.

In the interest of truth and justice, I have to do a great deal of talking myself, but some people think my points are well made. I have no egotism, and only talk because the truth requires it. I am on trial for truth, for justice, for vindication. I have no fears for this world or the next. The Deity always has taken care of me, and I am well satisfied with his dealings with me since he inspired me to attempt the president's removal. Had I been a marksman he would have done at once, but it is far better in every way that the Deity let him go as he did, because it gave the Deity an opportunity to confirm the act. It also prepared the public for the change. I am highly pleased with General Arthur. He has done splendidly in his new position. No one could have done better. He is high-toned, conservative, and keeps his secrets. I have been especially pleased with his conciliatory spirit and wisdom toward the opposition. It is exactly what I wished him to do, viz: Unite the factions of the republican party to the end that the nation may be happy and prosperous."

GUITEAU MATTERS.

Guiteau Injuring His Cause—New Trial Threatened.

GUITEAU CASE ADJOURNED.

WASHINGTON, December 19.—The criminal court opened at 11 o'clock and Guiteau was escorted to his seat by the officers. The announcement was immediately made of the death of the wife of Juryman Hobbs, and the court adjourned until Wednesday.

GUITEAU'S BUST.

A plaster cast was made to-day of Guiteau's head by Clark Mills, assisted by his son, Theodore Mills. After some hesitation the assassin consented to have his beard removed and then allowed a cast to be made. After the operation Guiteau expressed himself highly gratified with the result.

SCOVILLE AND GUITEAU.

Scoville is reported as saying he thinks Guiteau is spoiling his case as far as he can. Guiteau don't seem to be able to know what is to come from the questions Scoville asks witnesses, and when Scoville lays the foundation for a contradiction by witness, Guiteau does positive injury to himself and spoils the whole thing by correcting witness on the spot and putting him on his guard. This has been the case in regard to witness Shaw, for example. Scoville says, in reference to Mrs. Dunmire, he can prove she said at the time of her divorce to Dr. Bowker, of New York, that she thought she ought to remain with Guiteau as she believed he was insane and needed some one to care for him. Guiteau, when he was leaving the court room to-day, stopped at the district attorney's desk and said: "Corkhill, I have had a model taken from my head for a bust. I will be a great man yet if you let me alone."

NEW YORK, December 19.—The Herald's Washington special says: Mrs. Hobbs, wife of a juryman in the Guiteau case, is dead.

A mysterious box, supposed to be an infernal machine, was received yesterday from Michigan. Scoville opened the box, which was found to contain three dollars in ten cent pieces, collected by an old lady for the benefit of Scoville.

James Utley, who was represented to be a crank by a letter received Friday, is a wealthy lawyer of Neil City, Nebraska. He, in company with Hagerly, one of the editors of the Neil City Record, came to Washington to secure the reappointment of the latter as postmaster at that place. While Congressman Valentine had urged the claims of Matthews for postmaster, and his commission had been made out. It was withdrawn at the instance of Senators Saunders and Van Wyck. It is asserted that the letter charging Utley with being a crank and coming here to kill Guiteau and Scoville, was written for the purpose of damaging him politically and thereby destroy his influence in behalf of Hagerly.

The attorney for Mason, who attempted to kill Guiteau, announces that the defence will be insanity.

Trouble in Ireland.

DUBLIN, December 19.—A quantity of arms and ammunition were discovered early this morning in a house on Bridegain street. Four persons were arrested. The articles seized comprised eight hand grenades, two parcels of dynamite, each parcel being in a case resembling a box of rifle cartridges but larger, twenty six Enfield breech loading rifles, five thousand rifle cartridges, five hundred revolver cartridges and twenty eight pounds of gunpowder with a list of the names of officers belonging to the same organization. Two brothers named Whelan and Warramed Ryan are arrested. Whelan kept a store. The accused were arrested on private information. The documents seized were of an old date and had reference to the Fenian organization of 1867. The discovery is believed to be closely connected with the Bradford affair, for which Toby was arrested. The papers found at the time implicate a number of persons on both sides of the channel. No doubt it is associated with the Fenians.

The constabulary barracks at Croboy, near Hill of Down, Meath, were maliciously burned to the ground. The occupants were asleep at the time and barely escaped with their lives. Shots were fired into the house of Mason, employed by Magistrate Galbraith, at Cappard. Five persons were arrested in connection with the affair.

Considerable dissatisfaction is felt among the Irish constabulary at the movement of the government in recruiting their forces from the militia and soldiers whose terms of service expired. So strong is the feeling that the men will refuse duty with new recruits and a general strike is apprehended. Owing to the disturbed state of Ireland Lords Donoughmore and Inchiquin will quit their residences.

Police Shooting Police.

NEW YORK, December 19.—Policeman Thomas J. Norton was shot and fatally wounded to-night while patrolling. It was said he had been shot by Policeman Bernard Fitzpatrick. The trouble as far as ascertained arose from Officer Norton rapping at the door of a beer saloon where Fitzpatrick was in citizen's dress, and in company with a dissolute woman was raising a disturbance. Fitzpatrick told Officer Norton he was a policeman, and the latter demanded he should prove it by showing his shield. This he refused, and when he was threatened with arrest pulled a revolver and inflicted a fatal wound. At 1 o'clock he had not been arrested, though the officers are in search of him.

Will Not be Blackmailed.

LONDON, December 19.—The Countess of Crawford announced that she had determined not to offer a reward for the restoration of the body of her husband, the earl, in order not to create a precedent and encourage repetitions of such outrages. She has requested her son to do the same.

Excited Englishmen.

SUEZ, December 19.—In consequence of the report that an Italian had murdered a soldier, the military seized and imprisoned the governor, barricaded the doors of the governor's residence and refused to admit foreign consuls. It is now discovered the murder was really committed by a Bedouin. The town is quiet, but the affair created a sensation, showing the ease with which difficulty might arise.

Brave Words.

CHICAGO, December 19.—The Tribune's Rochester special says: Bishop McQuad made a savage attack on the cause of Irish nationalism yesterday in his sermon. He warned his congregation against supporting the "no rent" movement, saying it was not sanctified by the following of a few priests with loose consciences. The lines were sharply and determinedly drawn between revolutionists of the land league and all good Catholics.

Mrs. Lincoln.

NEW YORK, December 19.—Mrs. Lincoln is at present and has been for several months past in this city under the treatment of Dr. Tayne. The statement that she has lost her sight is false.

Denied.

CHICAGO, December 19.—The Tribune's Boston special says: It is denied emphatically by the Rev. J. M. Savage, of the Church of the Unity, in Boston, that the Rev. O. B. Frothingham has in any manner modified his heterodox views.

Not Separated in Death.

CHICAGO, December 19.—Last Friday Mrs. Mulvina Major and her infant child died within a few hours of each other. Her husband, Thomas Major, remarked: "I will be buried with them." And although closely watched by his brother, he escaped long enough to buy some poison which he took Saturday night, and died in great agony yesterday.

Mrs. Lincoln's Eyes.

CHICAGO, December 19.—The Inter-Ocean's New York special says: That Mrs. Lincoln has lost the use of her eyes is untrue. Dr. Lewis, who has been her physician since her return from Europe a year ago, told a reporter that her eyes had been growing sensibly weaker for some time past, and that he had determined to call in as consulting physician the occulist, Dr. C. R. Agnew, and Herman Knapp; that she had been accustomed to sitting in a dark [illegible] having her letters written, recently by an attendant has doubtless led to this statement.

DEDICATION SERVICES.

Religious Ceremonies at the Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday.

Description of the Edifice—Most Complete in the City.

The new Methodist church, on the corner of Nevada avenue and Kiowa street, was formally dedicated on Sunday. The programme as published in the GAZETTE on Sunday morning was so changed as to bring part of the dedicatory services in the evening instead of the morning. Long before the time for opening the services the church began to fill up, and it was necessary to use the class room in the rear of the main audience room for those who could not procure seats in the body of the church. The seating capacity of the edifice was tested to its fullest extent, and many who could not be provided with seats returned to their homes.

The principal feature of the morning service was the sermon delivered by the Rev. Earl Cranston, presiding elder of the district, from the second verse of the 50th Psalm. At the conclusion of the sermon an appeal was made on the part of the pastor Rev. W. L. Slutz and the building committee for subscriptions toward the liquidation of the remainder of the debt incurred in the construction of this church. Thirty eight hundred was the amount asked for and the subscriptions received at both the morning and evening services amounted to $4,000 or $200 more than the appeal called for.

In the evening Dr. David H. Moore, chancellor of the Denver University, preached a sermon after which the dedicatory services proper took place in which the Rev. Earl Cranston, Rev. W. L. Slutz and others took part. The new church is by far the largest and most complete church edifice in the city, and including the grounds and the two cottages in the rear cost about $19,000. Of this amount all has been paid or subscribed excepting a loan of $2,500 granted by the Church Extension society of the M. E. church. This loan is payable in annual installments of $500 and draws but six per cent. interest.

The furniture of the interior is neat and substantial, the pews being of black walnut and ash, and the pulpit furniture of black walnut upholstered in maroon plush. Both the main audience room and the class room are carpeted throughout, these carpets having been furnished by the ladies' society of the church. As for the heating and ventilating properties they are very complete. Mr. F. A. Weston, the architect, is to be commended for the completeness of the plans and for the efforts he has put forth to carry them into effect. The building is now entirely completed with the exception of the tower.

No efforts were made to decorate the interior of the church for the opening services, although some handsome flowers were furnished for the pulpit by Mrs. Horn and Mrs. Chambers.

ALVIN JOSLIN.

To-Night's Entertainment at the Opera House.

To-night the people of Colorado Springs will have another opportunity of witnessing the play of "Alvin Joslin," with Charles L. Davis in the title role. Mr. Davis has played this character very successfully for years, and is to-day classed among the leading actors of the day. He and his excellent company are all greeted with enthusiastic audiences wherever they play. Speaking of the play the Milwaukee Sentinel says the following:

At the Academy of Music last evening, the first representation of Alvin Joslin attracted a large audience. The play is light comedy throughout, and is very funny. The story consists of a delineation of the experiences of a Vermont farmer, who visits New York and trusts blindly to his impulses in solving the problems that come before him. The incidents and combinations of the scenes are very good, and if at times they seem rather exaggerated, the fact detracts nothing from their humor. Mr. Davis as "Alvin Joslin" kept the house in convulsions of laughter most of the time, and when the curtain fell at the close of the first act, he was called before the curtain repeatedly. Joe Baxter took perfectly the part of a bowery rat, young in years, but old in experience, and his slang was invariably the signal for laughter in the galleries. The character of Julia Ford, whose misery furnishes most of the pathos of the story, is well conceived by Miss Barnet. The company is a strong one, and the comedy is full of laughable incidents as it is possible [illegible] it. The same will be enacted each night during the remainder of the week.

There will be rhetorical exercises in the chapel of Colorado college at half-past seven this evening. The public is invited to attend. The following, together with some vocal and instrumental music, will make up the programme:

"What, and how Shall we Read?" ... Miss Ellen Gateley
"Our Mother Tongue" ... Mr. F. L. Cooper
"The Encroachments of Corporate Monopolies Upon Public Rights" ... Mr. Levi D. Ratliff
"The Beneficence of Law" ... Miss Lizzie S. Neal
"The Positive Philosophy" ... Mr. Parker S. Halleck
"Labor and Capital" ... Mr. Frederick W. Tuckerman

These rather formidable looking subjects were assigned to the students by Professor Marden.

Saturday afternoon two men, by the [illegible] of Pullen and Wilcox, hired a team of [illegible] Turner, the proprietor of the livery [illegible] the rear of the National hotel on C[illegible] street. The same evening Mr. [illegible] while on his way to his home [illegible] ment, found the team [illegible] Huerfano street bridge [illegible] demolished buggy [illegible] of one of the horses [illegible] other was in an ex[illegible] afterwards found [illegible] horse. The removal of Colonel Bartow from the editorship of the Leadville Democrat seems to be a matter of general regret.

The abstracted professor in Mrs. Burnett's "Through One Administration," now running as a serial in the Century, is said to represent Professor Simon Newcomb, of the Naval Observatory.

Mr. Chaffee's chances don't seem to be brilliant from our Washington dispatches. They never have been. Few things could be more impossible than his appointment. Dorsey or Brady has had an equally good chance.

The Iowa legislature has 54 farmers, 41 lawyers, 14 merchants, 7 physicians, [illegible] bankers, 3 editors and 1 minister. This shows the predominance of the farmer element in the state and accounts for the granger element.

One feature of the discussion of Mr. Chaffee's candidacy for the cabinet by the state press is significant. Office is the pivot. If Mr. Chaffee goes in a redistribution of offices is expected. This is the real strength of his candidacy in Colorado. The men who favor him want office.

Mr. Dorman B. Eaton, who has given the most intelligent study of the question of the civil service, favors the Pendleton bill. It is likely to cause a warm discussion. There are few senators, however, who will be willing to openly oppose reform. They will only say that Pendleton's bill is not practical.

Bills have been introduced for the admission of New Mexico, Dakota and Washington territory as states. Their admission will depend on what kind of a majority these territories will give. The democrats were very sorry for having passed the bill to admit Colorado. The situation will be thoroughly canvassed hereafter.

Whatever Mr. Blaine's immediate intentions are, it is pretty generally understood that he is in the field as a candidate for president in 1884. Whether he is a candidate or not will depend on Mr. Arthur. If he shows the same fair, conservative spirit he has shown since he went into office during the remainder of his term, nothing can prevent his renomination.

Mr. S. T. Armstrong, superintendent of the Colorado and New Mexico divisions of the Western Union Telegraph company, was interviewed by the Denver News Saturday. He said that he took charge of the department in 1875 when 728 miles of telegraph were operated. Since then the lines in Colorado alone have increased to 4914 miles. This is only one of the many signs of our growth and development.

The appointment of Chief Justice Gray, of Massachusetts, as associate justice of the United States supreme court is one of the best that could have been made. He has been chief justice of Massachusetts for a great many years, and has won the universal respect of the bar, both because of the purity of his character and his eminent ability. As a jurist he has ranked with Shaw and Story.

We have received a copy of the Denver Tribune Almanac for 1883. It contains a large amount of valuable information and will be useful for reference. In the calendar it contains the date of a large number of historical events in Colorado's history. The vote of the state in 1882 is given and other political information. There is also a digest of the state laws pertaining to fishing, hunting and the raising of stock.

One of the most significant signs in the south is the increase in the number of farms. This shows that wealth is being distributed more evenly. In 1860 Alabama had 55,128 farms. In 1880 she had 135,864. South Carolina had 33,171 farms in 1860 and 93,864 in 1880. This is a very remarkable change in twenty years. Comparisons with the returns for 1870 show that these changes have largely taken place since that date. All statistics show that the south is gaining rapidly in material resources.

If Dakota is admitted as a state a part of the territory will be cut off for a new territory. It has been suggested to name this new part Garfield or Lincoln. This would be eminently proper. Except Washington Territory no state or territory bears the name of any of our statesmen. This custom has been carried too far in the naming of new counties and towns where the names of the living have been used. But it could be well used in the instances mentioned above. Most of the states have received geographical names and [illegible] change would be advisable.

MR. SHERMAN'S FUNDING BILL.

The following is the full text of the Sherman funding bill as amended by the senate finance committee and reported from the committee to the senate on Friday last.

That the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to receive at the treasury and at [illegible] of any assistant treasurer of the United States, lawful money of the United States to the amount of $50, or any multiple of that sum, or any bonds of the United States bearing 3½ per cent interest, and to issue in exchange therefor an equal amount of registered or coupon bonds of the United States of the denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $10,000, of such form as he may prescribe, bearing interest at the rate of 3 per centum per annum, payable either quarterly or semi-annually, at the treasury of the United States. Such bonds shall be payable at the pleasure of the United States after the 1st day of January, A.D. [illegible], the order of their payment to be determined by law, or, in the absence of [illegible] legislation by rules and regulations to be [illegible] by the secretary of the treasury. [illegible] the bonds of the United States bearing 3½ per centum interest, and the aggregate amount of deposits made and bonds issued under this act shall not exceed the sum of $200,000,000. The amount of lawful money so received on deposit as aforesaid shall not exceed at any time the sum of $25,000,000.

It will be noticed that this is entirely different in character from the three per cent bill which President Hayes vetoed. That compelled all the national banks to hold their deposit to secure circulation in three per cent bonds. It also had many other objectionable features. It was drawn apparently with the idea that it would not be a success and so extra legislation was put in to make it a success. It was forcing credit. The above bill is based on the idea that the government credit is good enough to borrow money at three per cent and simply provides for that. The distinction is vital. Even if the credit of the government was good enough to borrow money at three per cent last March under a bill like Mr. Sherman's, it could not have been borrowed under Mr. Randall's bill because the latter presupposed that the credit was not good enough for this. If the government did not think so, the people certainly would not.

A candidate for the appointment to the Bodleian librarianship, who flattered himself that he is skilled in Latin hymns, lately bored Mr. Swinburne for a long time by a conversation on hymnology. The poet, with characteristic candor, [illegible] and asked if his interlocutor happened to know the hymn from which the [illegible]. "Know it!" was the answer, "why, I say it every evening before going to bed."

The old Duke of Wellington [illegible] thought of purchasing a farm adjacent to his estate of Strathfieldsaye, but gave his agent orders to negotiate. A few days later he was congratulated by a friend upon having secured a bargain, as the owner of the farm was in difficulties. "What sort of a bargain?" asked the duke. "Well, the property was valued at £11,000, but the man was glad to take £9,000." [illegible] Wellington [illegible] and receiving an affirmative reply [illegible] quickly. The Personal Appearance of Jeff. Davis

New York Herald

Mr. Davis, as he sat on a trunk in the cabin chatting with his friends, though he bore the unmistakable traces of his very advanced age—he is a man of seventy four—displayed yet much of that vigor in voice and gesture which would have only been looked for in a man much his junior in years. His tall, gaunt, wiry frame, encased in a long gray overcoat, was apparently little bent, and his characteristic face, with the heavy furrowed brow, the deep set, light clear eyes, the sternly chiseled nose and mouth, with their rather pathetic expression of shrunkenness, and the venerable gray white beard would have indicated him as a man of remarkable force even to anybody who did not know that the lonely old wayfarer was Jefferson Davis. He thanked the captain of the Neel for bringing him safely into port in words of a cordial ring, indeed his voice was strong enough to have been heard with good effect from the platform. Mr. Davis' daughter, a slender, willowy girl of graceful manners, just home from a school in Germany, added her thanks in that very pretty, musical German which is never heard from German lips and probably never sounds more charming to German ears than when coming from those of American girls.

He Turned Away

New York Herald interview with Jefferson Davis.

"I suppose you take a livelier interest in the subject of the reconciliation of the south and north than in any other. May I ask, therefore, how you expect that work to progress under President Arthur's administration?"

"How can I tell?" Mr. Davis replied with sudden warmth. "I lack the opportunity to inform myself on the public men of the day who have a voice in the administration." With a great emphasis he added: "I have shaken hands with political questions, and moreover I never allow any man to pump me." Davis dwelt with special vigor of voice on the word "pump," as though it was the object of his particular aversion.

"I think a time comes," said the former president of the confederacy, "when every man may wrap his mantle around himself as I have done." This declaration had a ring of strong dignity in it, and Mr. Davis, drawing himself up to his full height, turned away.

Eleven Simultaneous Messages on One Wire

Baltimore Sun, Dec. [illegible]

An Edison quadruplex telegraph instrument has been put into the headquarters of the Associated Press in Baltimore and will be in operation from to-day in conjunction with similar instruments at Washington, New York and Philadelphia. By this instrument a great advantage is gained over the old process for handling news. It is to an outsider a complex machine, and its mysteries are known only to the expert telegraph operator. Four different matters of news can be sent and received over a single wire simultaneously by its use. The Associated Press will now be enabled to send and receive its news with fourfold celerity. The limit of the capacity of the most powerful of these telegraph machines is said to be Eleven simultaneous messages over a single wire. By this means such a document as the president's message could be sent in [illegible] a single wire in a very brief time.

THE GREATEST OF DUELISTS

The Sharpest Antagonist M. Paul de Cassagnac Ever Had

London Times

M. Paul de Cassagnac, the editor of Le Pays, and who is undoubtedly the most celebrated duelist living, has had sixteen encounters on the field of honor, and has been wounded slightly three times. He is said to have killed two of his antagonists. Now and then Cassagnac "swears off," promising never to fight again, but the resolution, like some other plausible pledges, is easily broken. When Du Faure insulted him in the chamber of deputies in 1878, Cassagnac said savagely, "If I hadn't promised not to go out again I'd kill you for this." Cassagnac met his worst enemy, M. Adrien de Montebello, yesterday, November 25. There had been for some time a bitter grudge between the two, which was aggravated by M. de Montebello's attempt during the elections to wrest the arrondissement of Mirande, hitherto represented by M. Granier de Cassagnac, from his son. The contest was keen but the Bonapartist triumphed nevertheless. For some weeks there seems to have been a sort of truce, but M. Paul de Cassagnac took offense at M. de Montebello congratulating M. Clemenceau on his attack on the government, and on the following day the Pays appeared with a furious article against M. [illegible]'s chief secretary from its imperious editor's own pen. The insult was too gross to be passed over, and M. Adrien de Montebello accordingly at once dispatched two of his friends, the Vicomte de St. Pierre, senator, and M. Casimir Perier, deputy, to M. Paul de Cassagnac for the purpose of arranging the preliminaries of a hostile encounter. The gentlemen were promptly joined by M. George Hume, deputy, and Commandant Blanc, acting for M. de Cassagnac, and it was settled that the duel should take place on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 at M. Buloz's [illegible] at Epinay-sur-Seine. Punctual to the minute principals and seconds appeared at the [illegible] place yesterday, but it was soon perceived that the [illegible] selected would not suit and an hour was spent in search of a better one. Finally a spot was found that answered every requirement and the silver [illegible] soon [illegible]. It was a battle of giants. M. de Cassagnac is a big, heavy man, rather over three inches six feet in height, but he is small in comparison with M. de Montebello, who actually towers above him, though of a spare build. Both are very strong and admirable fencers, but the Bonapartist proved himself the better man of the two. After a pass or two a blow was [illegible] by M. de Montebello, [illegible] by his adversary's sword and he exclaimed that he thought he was touched in the breast. The doctor examined the place, but found no wound, and the combat was continued. It was at the fifth pass that M. de Montebello was wounded in the right arm. M. de Cassagnac's sword [illegible] the very bone. He dropped his sword, and M. de Cassagnac, turning to his seconds, remarked that he thought it was all over, as he felt that he had struck home. His prediction proved correct, the doctors refusing to allow the combat to be continued. M. de Cassagnac declared that he had never had such trouble with an adversary before.

Lord Beaconsfield's Song

At a recent country race meeting in England a [illegible] song entitled "The Yeomen of Bucks," composed by the late Lord Beaconsfield to be sung at a political dinner in Buckinghamshire forty years ago, when as Mr. Disraeli he sat for that county, was given with much applause. Only one copy of it was known to be in existence, preserved by the wife of a Buckinghamshire yeoman. It was originally dedicated to the Marchioness of Chandos. The text runs thus:

> "Take up the cup, [illegible] the [illegible] fulling
> [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
> But [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
> And with hearts not less stout than the bold cavalier—
> The Yeomen of Bucks.
>
> The land they love they will ever defend,
> Ever firm to the [illegible] true friend,
> And their green pastures and homesteads so fair
> To live and let live is the motto they bear—
> The Yeomen of Bucks.
>
> Ah! land of the Chilterns! Ah! land of the vale!
> Will the sons of the soil from their faith ever fail?
> [illegible] green banner wave high in the wind
> There are some gallant spirits will never lag behind—
> The Yeomen of Bucks.
>
> And if the dark cloud that now over us lowers
> Bring[illegible] to the state and bear gloom to our bowers,
> We know a brave band that right soon will be seen
> Astir in their saddles to guard their young queen—
> The Yeomen of Bucks.
>
> Then a health to the [illegible] that each of us loves,
> Its halls and its hamlets, its fields and its groves,
> And to each blazing fagot [illegible] may be fetched
> The [illegible] of yeomen that ever tilled the ground—
> The Yeomen of Bucks."

Where Insanity Takes Root.

From the London Times

To the literature of cranks may be added some curious statistics showing the extent of mental aberration among the members of various professions and trades in this country. Among the 5,[illegible] civil engineers of England last year 2 had [illegible] insane. This same unhappy fate befell 16 of 5,804 painters and sculptors, only 25 of 32,000 architects and educators, [illegible] of 20,014 clergymen of the established church, 145 of 233,[illegible] masons, bricklayers and stonecutters, 132 of 100,824 painters, glaziers and paperstainers, and 174 of 237,621 carpenters. Only in curiously small number of 12 cases of permanent insanity were reported among the 134,141 authors, journalists, reporters and translators, male and female of the kingdom.

As Daring as His Name Sake

From the Paterson N. J. Press

Napoleon Bonaparte Barney, a machinist employed at the Rogers locomotive works at Paterson, was divorced from his wife and she went to her father's house in Utica. Mr. Barney, who is about sixty, married a Miss Sutton, sixteen years of age. They had one child. In the summer of 1880 Mr. Barney's grown up son by his first wife, named Wallace Barney, came to Paterson from Utica and fell in love with his stepmother. Then Mrs. Barney the [illegible] came to Paterson and met her former husband. He was surprised to find himself glad to see her. A family council was held the result of which has just come to light. The old man obtained a divorce from his young wife and a day or two later married his first wife. At the same time his son married his father's second wife and became his step brother's step father.

Bob Toombs' Brass Band

From the Atlanta Constitution

I suppose every one connected in any way with the University of Georgia has heard of the famous oak in front of the chapel, and in connection with it I will relate [illegible] of Bob [illegible], [illegible] his irresistible nature, which so characterized him in his after life.

Toombs had been attending college two years, and was within a week of graduating, when in a difficulty, he stabbed one of the students, inflicting a serious but not fatal wound. For this he was expelled by the faculty, who soon after were informed by the graduating class to allow him to graduate with them, as he had so nearly completed his course, and had also been given a speaker's place. Toombs himself petitioned them, but both were refused. He apparently submitted, but on commencement day, when the chapel was crowded with visitors, and the seniors vehemently orating preparatory to receiving their diplomas, he stationed a brass band under the spreading limbs of the oak, whose music succeeded in bringing scores of town people who were not then in the chapel, and also of clearing it of nearly of all its auditors.

Then, in as cool a manner as possible, he placed himself in a chair and made an oration, such, it is said, as was never spoken by a student here before or since. He never received his diploma, though after his celebrated Boston speech it was sent him, but was returned with the answer: "D—n the diploma, when it would have been an honor to me I was refused it, now, when I am an honor to it, it is offered me." He was afterward reconciled with the faculty, and is now one of the staunchest supporters of the college.

Guiteau's Brother's Opinion

NEW YORK, December 19.—John W. Guiteau, brother of the assassin of the president, who became convinced of Charles' insanity after visiting him in his cell, in conversation with a Tribune correspondent gives his reasons for his present belief and makes an argument in support of the defense of irresponsibility. [illegible] think the assassin is playing a part and that he shapes his conduct pretty much from what he reads in the newspapers.

Mark Twain on Copyright Law

From His Montreal Speech

I came here to place myself under the protection of the Canadian law and to secure a copyright. I have complied with the requirements of the law. I have followed the instructions of some of the best legal minds in the city, including my own, and so my errand is accomplished at least as far as any exertions of mine can aid that accomplishment. This is a rather cumbersome way to fence and fortify one's property against the literary buccaneer, it is true, still it is effective. It is a great advance upon past conditions and one to be correspondingly welcomed. It makes one hope and believe that a day will come when in the eye of the law literary property will be as sacred as whisky or any other of the necessaries of life. [Uproarious laughter.] In this age of ours if you steal another man's label to advertise your own brand of whisky with you will be heavily fined and otherwise punished for violating that trade mark. [Hear, hear.] If you steal the whisky without the trade mark you go to jail—[laughter]—but if you could prove that the whisky was literature you could steal them both, and the law wouldn't say a word. [Cheers and laughter.] It grieves me to think how far more profound and reverent a respect the law would have for literature if a body could only get drunk on it.

OMAHA & DENVER SHORT LINE.

Its Convenience to Colorado Business Men.

Commencing Sunday, November 6, 1881, the Union Pacific company will run a fast Omaha express through between Denver and Omaha daily, over the recently constructed Julesburg cutoff.

Leaving Denver (breakfast)	8 00 a m
Arrive at Sterling (dinner)	1 35 p m
Arrive at North Platte	7 00 p m
Arrive at Omaha	7 [illegible] a m
Arrive at Council Bluffs (breakfast)	8 00 a m
Arrive at Chicago (Chicago time)	6 30 a m

Time, Denver to Omaha, twenty three and one half hours; time, Denver to Chicago, forty-six hours.

This new route is 180 miles shorter than any other, six hours the quickest to Omaha, seven to fifteen hours the quickest to Chicago, St. Louis and all points east, and it runs the finest trains ever built—constructed by the Pullman company expressly for this line. They embody every feature of safety, convenience and luxury yet attained in railway equipment. It is the only through line possessing a water grade across the plains (averaging less than ten feet to the mile). It is the most picturesque route, has the best dining stations, the heaviest steel rails, best iron bridges and most careful ballasting.

Passengers from Leadville, Gunnison, San Juan and all points in southern Colorado make close connection in the Union depot, Denver, and arrive in Chicago and all eastern cities so as to have a full day for business on the day of arrival, practically saving from twelve to twenty four hours, and avoiding all night changes.

Meantime the old Kansas Pacific route, now Kansas division Union Pacific railway, to Kansas City and all points east and southeast, and the Pioneer Union Pacific route from Denver, via Cheyenne, to Omaha and the east and northeast, maintain their usual standard of excellence. Tickets via Cheyenne are good over the new route, or vice versa. 1 23-tf

OZONE

A New Process for Preserving all Perishable Articles Animal and Vegetable, from Fermentation and Putrefaction, Retaining their Odor and Flavor.

"OZONE—Purified air, active state of oxygen."—Webster.

This preservative is not a liquid, pickle, or any of the old and exploded processes, but is simply and purely OZONE, as produced and applied by an entirely new process. Ozone is the antiseptic principle of every substance, and possesses the power to preserve animal and vegetable structures from decay.

There is nothing on the face of the earth liable to decay or spoil which Ozone, the new preservative, will not preserve for all time in a perfectly fresh and palatable condition.

The value of Ozone as a natural preserver has been known to our ablest chemists for years, but, until now, no means of producing it in a practical, inexpensive, and simple manner have been discovered.

Microscopic observations prove that decay is due to septic matter or minute germs that develop and feed upon animal and vegetable structures. Ozone, applied by the Prentiss method, seizes and destroys these germs at once and thus preserves. At our offices in Cincinnati can be seen almost every article that can be thought of preserved by this process, and every visitor is welcome to come in, taste, smell, take away with him and test in every way the merits of Ozone as a preservative. We will also preserve free of charge any article that is brought or sent prepaid to us, and return it to the sender, for him to keep and test.

FRESH MEATS, such as beef, mutton, veal, pork, poultry, game, fish, &c., preserved by this method can be shipped to Europe, subjected to atmospheric changes, and returned to this country in a state of perfect preservation.

EGGS can be treated at a cost of less than one dollar a thousand dozen, and be kept in an ordinary room six months or more thoroughly preserved, the yolk held in its normal condition and the eggs as fresh and perfect as on the day they were treated, and will sell as strictly "choice." The advantage in preserving eggs is readily seen, as there are seasons when they can be bought for 8 or 10 cents a dozen, and by holding them can be sold for an advance of from one hundred to three hundred per cent. One man, with this method, can preserve 5,000 dozen a day.

FRUITS may be permitted to ripen in their native climate and can be transported to any part of the world.

The juice expressed from fruits can be held for an indefinite period without fermentation—hence the great value of this process for producing a temperance beverage. Cider can be held perfectly sweet for any length of time.

VEGETABLES can be kept for an indefinite period in their natural condition, retaining their odor and flavor, treated in their original packages, at a small expense. All grains, flour, meal, etc., are held in their normal condition.

BUTTER, after being treated by this process, will not become rancid.

Dead human bodies, treated before decomposition sets in, can be held in a natural condition for weeks, without puncturing the skin or mutilating the body in any way. Hence the great value of Ozone to undertakers.

There is no change in the slightest particular in the appearance of any article thus preserved, and no trace of any foreign or unnatural odor or taste.

The process is so simple that a child can operate it as well and as successfully as a man. There is no expensive apparatus or machinery required.

A room filled with different articles, such as eggs, meat, fish, etc., can be treated at one time, without additional trouble or expense.

☞ In fact, there is nothing that Ozone will not preserve. Think of every thing you can that is liable to sour, decay, or spoil, and then remember that we guarantee that Ozone will preserve it in exactly the condition you want it for any length of time. If you will remember this it will save asking questions as to whether Ozone will preserve this or that article—it will preserve anything and everything you can think of.

There is not a township in the United States in which a live man cannot make any amount of money from $3,000 to $10,000 a year that he pleases. We desire to get a live man interested in each county in the United States, to whose hands we can place this preservative, and through him secure the business which every county ought to produce.

A FORTUNE

Awaits Any Man who Secures Control of OZONE in any Township or County

A. C. B[illegible], Marion, Ohio, has cleared $2,000 in two months. $2 for a test package was his first investment.

Woods Brothers, [illegible], Warren county, Ohio, made $8,000 on eggs purchased in August and sold in [illegible]. $2 for a test package was their first investment.

F. K. [illegible], [illegible] county, Ohio, is making $[illegible] a month in [illegible] [illegible] Ozone. $2 for a test package was his first investment.

D. F. Weller, Charlotte, Eaton county, Mich., has cleared $3,000 [illegible] since [illegible]. $2 for a test package was his first investment.

J. B. Gaylord, [illegible], [illegible] is preserving eggs in [illegible] for the [illegible] of Chicago, charging 1 per dozen for eggs and other articles in proportion. He is preserving [illegible] and is doing a business of making $40,000 annually. $2 for a test package was his first investment.

The Cincinnati Feed company, 498 West Seventh street, is [illegible] Ozone to their [illegible] [illegible] to all parts of the country. Malt [illegible] by Ozone. It keeps perfectly sweet for months.

These are instances which we have asked the privilege of publishing. There are scores of others. Write to any of the above parties and get the evidence direct.

Now, to prove the absolute truth of everything we have said in this paper we propose to place in your hands the means of proving for yourself that we have not said half enough. To any person who doubts any of the above statements and who is interested sufficiently to make the trip, we will pay all traveling and hotel expenses for a visit to this city if we fail to prove any statement that we have made.

HOW TO SECURE A FORTUNE WITH OZONE

A test package of Ozone, containing a sufficient quantity to preserve one thousand dozen eggs or other articles in proportion, will be sent to any applicant on receipt of $2. This package will enable the applicant to try such tests and experiments as he desires, and thus satisfy himself as to the extraordinary merits of Ozone as a preservative. After having thus satisfied himself and made up his mind to determine what he wishes to do in the future—whether to sell the article to others, or confine it to his own use, or any other line of business which is best suited to him and to his locality or county—we will enter into an arrangement with him that will make a fortune for him and save us good profits. We will give exclusive township or county privileges to the first responsible applicant who sends a test package and who desires to control the business in his locality. The man who secures control of Ozone for any special territory will enjoy a monopoly which will surely enrich him.

Don't let a day pass until you have ordered a test package, and if you do not want to secure an exclusive privilege we assure you that delay may deprive you of it. For the applications come in to us by scores every mail—many by telegraph. "First come first served" is our rule.

If you do not care to send money in advance for the test package we will send it C. O. D., but this will put you to the expense of charges for return money. Our correspondence is very large. We have all we can do to attend to the shipping of orders and giving attention to our working agents. Therefore, we cannot give any attention to letters which do not order Ozone. If [illegible] that you are doubtful about Ozone preserving, remember that it will preserve it, no matter what it is.

REFERENCES:

We desire to [illegible] as to [illegible] reference with [illegible] enterprise or business a success and [illegible] high commercial standing. We refer by permission, as to our integrity and the value of the Prentiss Preservative, to the following gentlemen: Edward C. Cappeller, county auditor; county commissioners, Hamilton county, Ohio, all of Cincinnati. These gentlemen are each familiar with the merits of our preservative, and know from actual observation that we have without question

The Most Valuable Article in the World.

The $2 you invest in the test package will surely lead you to secure a [illegible] [illegible] and then your way is absolutely [illegible] from $3,000 to $10,000 a [illegible].
